The charge herein was filed by the Board of Education of the Northport-East Northport Union Free School District (charging party). It alleged that the United Teachers of Northport (respondent) failed to negotiate in good faith in violation of Civil Service Law Section 209-a.2(b) in that it improperly insisted upon the negotiation of demands that are not mandatory subjects of negotiations. The charge also alleged that respondent refused to specify its wage demand. Respondent's answer submitted on March 26, 1976 denied so much of the charge as alleged that certain demands made by it are not mandatory subjects of negotiations. It also denied the allegation that it had refused to specify its wage increase demand.

On April 15, 1976, charging party withdrew that part of its charge which alleged that respondent had refused to specify its wage increase demand. This left only scope of negotiations issues. With respect to those, charging party requested expedited treatment under Section 204.4 of our Rules. Charging party's letter of April 15, 1976 also amended the charge to withdraw from it three items that it had alleged to be non-mandatory, but about which it no longer took that position. Remaining were nine new respondent negotiations demands that charging party alleged to be non-mandatory subjects of negotiations. Also remaining were demands to carry into the new contract twelve clauses of the prior contract which charging party alleged to be non-mandatory.

After several communications and at least one conference, the Director of Public Employment Practices and Representation notified the parties on May 14, 1976 that the dispute would be accorded expedited treatment. Another conference was held on June 2, 1976. At that conference respondent raised several defenses to the charge. As one of its defenses, it argued that the charge and the request for expedited determination were premature because the impasse had not gone to factfinding and no improper practice can exist until respondent insists upon non-mandatory subjects during or after factfinding.

This argument is supported by the facts and is based upon a correct understanding of the law. The matter before us was brought by a charge alleging that respondent has improperly insisted upon the negotiation of non-mandatory subjects of negotiations. In Matter of Board of Higher Education of the City of New York, 7 PERB ¶3028 (1974) and Matter of Yorktown Faculty Association, 7 PERB ¶3030 (1974), we have indicated our acceptance of the private sector rule in NLRB v. Borg Warner Corp., 35 US 392 (1955), that a party may propose for agreement matters that are not mandatory subjects of negotiations, but may not press such a proposal to the point of insistence. In the Board of Higher Education case, we said, "It is, of course, difficult to draw a precise line between appropriate conduct by proposing non-mandatory contract terms and inappropriate insistence upon such a demand. We determine that the insistence on the demand in the instant case went too far when, over the objections of BHE, it was carried into factfinding and even beyond factfinding."

In the instant case we now determine that respondent, not having carried its demands into factfinding, has not gone too far and, thus, has not violated its duty to negotiate in good faith.
There is no procedure for declaratory judgments concerning scope of negotiations. The omission of such a procedure is not inadvertent. The policy underlying the Taylor Law is that public employers and employee organizations representing public employees should negotiate with each other and enter into written agreements (CSL §200). Those agreements may, but need not, extend to non-mandatory subjects of negotiations (Matter of Susquehanna Valley School District at Conklin—[Susquehanna Valley Teachers Association] 37 NY2d 614).

Frequently demands which may involve non-mandatory subjects of negotiations are resolved in the give-and-take of negotiations at the bargaining table. Agreements so arrived at, which are as likely to benefit one party as the other — and most frequently both — are to be preferred to the litigation before us of scope of negotiations questions that declaratory judgment procedures would encourage. It is only when demands for non-mandatory subjects of negotiations impede or inhibit the bargaining process that the legal processes of this Board ought be invoked.

NOW, THEREFORE, WE ORDER that the charge herein be, and hereby is, dismissed.

The charge herein was filed by the Ellenville Central School District (charging party) on March 25, 1976. It alleged that the Ellenville Teachers Association (respondent) failed to negotiate in good faith in violation of Civil Service Law Section 209-a.2(b) in that it improperly insisted upon the negotiation of demands that are not mandatory subjects of negotiations. The charge specified approximately thirty demands of respondent that it alleged to be non-mandatory subjects of negotiations. Of these, approximately half were provisions that were found to be in the prior contract and the balance were new demands. Subsequently, the charge was amended by deleting reference to three of the respondent's demands. Charging party seeks expedited treatment of the scope of negotiations questions under Section 204.4 of our Rules.

In its response to the charge, respondent raised four defenses. The first was that the charge was premature and, thus, defective. The remaining three were directed to other procedural and substantive positions. It is unnecessary for us to reach any of those defenses as the first one is supported by the facts and is based upon a correct understanding of the Law. No impasse was declared in the negotiations between charging party and respondent until April 9, 1976, and the first factfinding session was held on June 22, 1976.
The matter before us was brought by a charge alleging that respondent has improperly insisted upon the negotiation of non-mandatory subjects of negotiations. In Matter of Board of Higher Education of the City of New York, 7 PERB ¶3028 (1974) and Matter of Yorktown Faculty Association, 7 PERB ¶3030 (1974), we have indicated our acceptance of the private sector rule in NLRB v. We determine that the insistence on the demand in the instant case went too far when, over the objections of BHE, it was carried into factfinding and even beyond factfinding."

In the instant case, since the charge was filed prior to an impasse being declared, it is clear that the respondent had not pressed such proposals to the point of insistence and, thus, had not violated its duty to negotiate in good faith.

There is no procedure for declaratory judgments concerning scope of negotiations. The omission of such a procedure is not inadvertent. The policy underlying the Taylor Law is that public employers and employee organizations representing public employees should negotiate with each other and enter into written agreements (CSL §200). Those agreements may, but need not, extend to non-mandatory subjects of negotiations (Matter of Susquehanna Valley School District at Conklin [Susquehanna Valley Teachers Association] 37 NY 2d 614). Agreements so arrived at, which are as likely to benefit one party as the other — and most frequently both — are to be preferred to the litigation before us of scope of negotiations questions that declaratory judgment procedures would encourage. It is only when demands for non-mandatory subjects of negotiations impede or inhibit the bargaining process that the legal processes of this Board ought be invoked.

NOW, THEREFORE, WE ORDER that the charge herein be, and hereby is,

Dismissed.
