BOARD DECISION AND ORDER

This matter comes to us on the exceptions of the Churchville-Chili Education Association (Association) to a decision of the Director of Public Employment Practices and Representation (Director) dismissing its charge that the Churchville-Chili Central School District (District) violated the Taylor Law by unilaterally creating two new extra-compensation positions, establishing the initial amount of the extra compensation and appointing two individuals to fill the positions rather than seeking volunteers. The Director dismissed the charge on the ground that none of the alleged unilateral actions constituted a mandatory subject of negotiation.

In its exceptions, the Association argues that the Director failed to give due consideration to the fact that the Association and the District were negotiating with respect to the two positions at the time when the unilateral action was taken. It contends that the District's creation and filling of the two positions, albeit normally a management prerogative, must be seen as intimidating and coercing unit employees in the pursuit of their negotiating demands. The Association contends that the coincidence of the District's unilateral action and the negotiations, and the absence of a demonstrated need to take that action at that time evidenced an intention to coerce and intimidate the employees and their representatives.

We do not agree. The record does not support this assertion. Accordingly, we affirm the decision of the Director dismissing the charge.
NOW, THEREFORE, WE ORDER that the charge herein be, and it hereby is, dismissed.

BOARD DECISION AND ORDER

This matter comes to us on the exceptions of the City of Saratoga Springs Fire Fighters Union, Local 343, IAFF, AFL-CIO (Fire Fighters), to the decision of an Administrative Law Judge (ALJ) dismissing its charge that the City of Saratoga Springs (City) violated §209-a.1(a), (c) and (d) of the Taylor Law. The conduct complained about is that the City introduced three new demands into negotiations more than a year after negotiations commenced.

The ALJ dismissed the charge on two grounds. The first was that notwithstanding the length of time after their commencement, the negotiations were not yet at impasse when the City introduced the new demands. Thus, according to the ALJ, the City had been free to expand its proposals in the course of negotiations, absent evidence that its conduct was designed to frustrate an agreement, and there was no such evidence. The second ground was that the introduction of the new demands was related to two recently issued arbitration awards which would have justified the new demands even if there had been an impasse.

In support of its exceptions dealing with the first ground, the Fire Fighters merely focus upon the one-year hiatus between the first negotiating session and the City's new proposals. There were, however, only two other negotiating sessions. Negotiations were then suspended while the parties awaited the decision of this Board in a scope of negotiations case brought by a Fire Fighter charge.¹/ We therefore affirm the ALJ's finding that there is no evidence establishing that the City lacked a sincere desire to reach agreement.²/ Further, as the parties had not reached impasse,³/ the City's expansion of demands was not a per se violation of its duty to negotiate in good faith.

²/See Columbia County, 10 PERB ¶3047 (1977), aff'g. 10 PERB 4513 (1977); Town of Southampton, 2 PERB ¶3011 (1969).

³/In City of Newburgh, 15 PERB ¶3116 (1981), p. 3180, we defined impasse as: "[A] situation in which there was no reasonable expectation that further negotiations would be fruitful without third party assistance. . .".
Addressing the second ground for the ALJ's decision, the Fire Fighters argue that the new demands were not directed to the subject matter of the arbitration awards. The facts do not support this argument. The first award dealt with the right of certain employees to accumulated sick leave. The first new demand was for a waiver of the contractual benefits of these employees. In the course of resolving the first grievance, the arbitrator interpreted the contract with respect to the manner in which sick leave is accumulated. The second new demand deals with this issue. The second arbitration award reversed restrictions imposed by the City on the trading of days off. This is the subject of the third demand. These awards are a significant change in circumstances and they permit a corresponding change in the City's negotiating posture.

NOW, THEREFORE, WE ORDER that the charge herein be, and it hereby is, dismissed.

This matter comes to us on the exceptions of the Civil Service Employees Association, Inc., Local 655 (CSEA) to a hearing officer's decision dismissing its charge that on January 11, 1982, the State of New York (Department of Correctional Services) (State) unilaterally adopted new procedures on January 11, 1982 to control sick leave abuse.

The State and CSEA were parties to a collective bargaining agreement which was in effect on January 11, 1982 and which covered both sick leave and discipline. The State issued a memorandum on that day describing a new "Attendance Improvement Program" in the Department of Correctional Services and stated that it would be implemented statewide. The memorandum set forth as attendance policy: compliance with existing Department of Correctional Services directives, that employees would report absence or lateness to their supervisors, that supervisors would use a new form for recording such absences, and that employees who are absent excessively would have to submit a physician's certification, be subject to home visitation and return calls, would not be permitted to use other forms of leave where sick leave has been exhausted and would be denied approval for secondary employment. These provisions were made applicable by the memorandum to those employees who had been absent twelve or more times during the period of October 1, 1980 to October 1, 1981.

The memorandum also prescribed procedures to be followed by supervisors in dealing with suspected abuses of sick leave. These include counseling and culminate in disciplinary action. According to the hearing officer, the comprehensive coverage of sick leave and discipline in the parties' collective bargaining agreement deprived the Board of jurisdiction over the charge, the State's unilateral action, if any, constituting a breach of contract.

\[1\] The hearing officer dismissed the charge on the merits. As we affirm the dismissal on jurisdictional grounds, we do not consider the exceptions directed to that part of the hearing officer's decision.
In support of its exceptions, CSEA argues that the collective bargaining agreement does not deal with the particulars of the change, that it is not charging a violation of the contract and that the State is not asserting an explicit contractual right to have made the changes. In response, the State argues that the hearing officer correctly determined that the subject matter was covered by the parties' agreement.

Having reviewed the record, we find that the collective bargaining agreement in effect on January 11, 1982 thoroughly covered sick leave and other forms of leaves of absence and, with respect to sick leave, incorporates by reference applicable provisions of the Civil Service Rules and Regulations. That agreement also covered the subject of discipline comprehensively. Article 43 of that agreement stated that it is "the entire agreement between the State and CSEA, terminates all prior agreements and understanding and concludes all collective negotiations during its term." In addition, the parties had established a detailed grievance and arbitration procedure.

CSEA complains that the State has imposed a disciplinary procedure which is not permissible under the parties' agreement. This is a question of contract interpretation which is beyond the jurisdiction of this Board. 2/

CASE NO. E-0714

Upon the Application for Designation of Persons as Managerial or Confidential.

MARC Z. KRAMER, ESQ. and SUSAN H. MORRIS, ESQ.,
for New York City Board of Education

BRUCE K. BRYANT, ESQ., for Council of Supervisors and Administrators

BOARD DECISION AND ORDER

This matter comes to us on the exceptions of the Council of Supervisors and Administrators of the City of New York (CSA) to a decision of the Acting Director of Public Employment Practices and Representation (Acting Director) designating Harvey Weintraub and Gerald Brooks respectively as managerial and confidential employees of the City School District of the City of New York (City District)."\(^1\)

\(^1\)The application herein was for the designation of 14 positions as managerial and confidential. No exceptions were filed to the Acting Director's disposition of 12 of the 14 positions covered by the application.
Weintraub is the Director of Curriculum for Community School District 19 (Community District). The Acting Director found that Weintraub’s responsibilities in connection with the curriculum of the Community District included regular participation in the essential process involving the determination of the goals and objectives of the City District and the methods for accomplishing those goals and objectives. He concluded that these responsibilities constitute the formulation of policy.

CSA argues that the Acting Director erred because the Chancellor of the City District promulgates curriculum requirements for the entire city school system and the City District Superintendent makes the final decision in

In City of Binghamton, 12 PERB ¶3099, at 3185 (1979), we said:

To formulate policy is to participate with regularity in the essential process involving the determination of the goals and objectives of the government involved, and of the methods for accomplishing those goals and objectives that have a substantial impact upon the affairs and the constituency of the government.
curriculum matters not determined by the Chancellor.

Having reviewed the record, we find that the Community District has considerable discretion in establishing the goals and objectives for each of its classes and that the City District Superintendent relies heavily on Weintraub in exercising this discretion. Accordingly, we affirm the determination of the Acting Director that Weintraub is a managerial employee.

Brooks is the Director of Education Recruitment for the City District, in which role he recruits supervisory employees. The Acting Director determined that this responsibility is neither managerial nor confidential. On the other hand, Brooks regularly attends the weekly cabinet meetings of the Division of Personnel. Among the matters that have been discussed at these meetings are potential layoffs of employees and staff reorganization. This, according to the Acting Director, is sufficient for Brooks' designation as confidential.

CSA points out that it is rare for matters such as staff reorganization or employee layoffs to be discussed at the weekly cabinet meetings. Accordingly, it argues that Brook's attendance at the meetings is not a sufficient basis for his designation as confidential. We note, however, that such discussions are held at those meetings whenever the occasion arises.

CSA also argues that the Acting Director erred in stating that Brooks serves under the Executive Director of the City District's Division of Personnel, who is conceded to be a managerial employee. It asserts that he works for Tames, the Deputy Director, with respect to whom there is no concession that he is managerial. The purported relevance of this distinction is that §201.7 of the Taylor Law provides that a person may be designated confidential only if he assists and acts in a confidential capacity to a managerial employee. We find, however, that regardless of whom Brooks reports to as a regular matter, he acts in a confidential capacity to Executive Director Aquilone when he attends the cabinet meetings. Accordingly, we affirm the determination of the Acting Director designating Brooks as confidential.

NOW, THEREFORE, WE ORDER:

1. that Harvey Weintraub be, and he hereby is, designated a managerial employee.
2. that Gerald Brooks be, and he hereby is, designated a confidential employee.

BOARD DECISION AND ORDER

This matter comes to us on the exceptions of Craig Colony, Local 405, Civil Service Employees Association, Inc. (CSEA) to an Administrative Law Judge (ALJ) decision dismissing its charge against the State of New York (Craig Developmental Center) (State). The charge alleges that the State violated §209-a.1(b) and (c) of the Taylor Law in that the Craig Developmental Center, a State institution, commenced disciplinary action against Clarence Herington, the Local CSEA president, because he had published statements that criticized the Center. The hearing was originally scheduled for August 24, 1983. Both Herington and another CSEA witness, James Dunlop, failed to appear at the hearing, and neither called in advance to advise that they would not attend.

The ALJ took the testimony of Charles Bird, a CSEA field representative who services the employees of the Craig Center. He testified that Herington had issued a newspaper advertisement, published on September 5, 1982, which was highly critical of the Center's community residence program. He further testified that managerial employees at the Center had known of the article before it was published and had indicated their unhappiness with it. Bird then testified that Herington was placed on administrative leave on September 1, 1982, and was subsequently brought up on both disciplinary and criminal charges which alleged patient abuse.

The ALJ determined that Bird was not personally familiar with many of the events about which he testified and she concluded that Bird's testimony was not sufficient to sustain the charge.

Some time after the hearing, the ALJ received affidavits from Herington and Dunlop explaining their absences. Dunlop's affidavit stated that he was unable to attend because of eye surgery on August 11, 1983. Herington claimed medical problems and then, inconsistently, stated that he had been confused about his departure time and had missed his ride to the hearing.

The ALJ scheduled a second day of hearing for December 28, 1983. Once again, without prior notification to the ALJ or to the State, neither Herington nor Dunlop appeared. A third witness called by charging party also failed to appear. Dunlop and Herington subsequently submitted affidavits explaining their absences. Dunlop claimed that his prior eye problems were still bothering him and that he also suffered from back problems. Herington stated that he could not attend because of a chimney fire at his home four days earlier, because his wife was ill, and because he had no means of transportation. He further stated that the pending criminal charges had so unnerved him as to have interfered with his notifying the ALJ, CSEA or the State that he would not attend.

The ALJ refused to schedule a third day of hearing and issued her decision on the basis of Bird's testimony at the first hearing. Charging party now argues that the ALJ erred in not scheduling a third hearing and in not finding Bird's testimony, standing alone, sufficient to substantiate the charge. The State has submitted a brief in support of the ALJ's decision.

Having reviewed the record, we affirm the decision of the ALJ that the evidence in the record is not sufficient to sustain the charge. Section 209-a.1(b) of the Taylor Law prohibits a public employer from dominating or interfering with the administration of an employee organization. The record is devoid of any such evidence. Section 209-a.1(c) prohibits a public employer from discriminating against an employee for the purpose of encouraging or discouraging employee participation in a union. While Bird's testimony indicates that representatives of the State were displeased with actions taken by Herington on behalf of CSEA, his testimony does not persuade us that such displeasure was the reason for the State's initiation of disciplinary charges against Herington. On the contrary, the record discloses a reasonable basis for the employer to believe that Herington was implicated in serious misconduct which occasioned the initiation of the disciplinary charges.¹/

We also affirm the action of the ALJ in not scheduling a third day of hearing after Herington and Dunlop failed, without prior notice, to appear at two scheduled days of hearing. Their excuses disclose no convincing justification for their failure to attend. As the charging party, CSEA is responsible for the attendance of its own witnesses.²/

NOW, THEREFORE, WE ORDER that the charge herein be, and it hereby is, dismissed.
