INTERIM BOARD DECISION AND ORDER

On December 6, 2006, the City of New York (City) filed a declaratory ruling petition, pursuant to PERB's Rules of Procedure (Rules) §210.1, that, as amended, sought a determination regarding whether seven demands made by the Police Benevolent Association of the City of New York, Inc. (hereinafter PBA) in its interest arbitration petition constitute non-mandatory subjects of collective bargaining. Thereafter, the PBA filed a response to the City's petition for a declaratory ruling.

On May 3, 2007, Administrative Law Judge Philip L. Maier issued a

Recommended Declaratory Ruling and Decision concluding that two of the PBA's seven demands were properly submitted to interest arbitration and that the remaining five demands were not properly submitted. Both the PBA and the City have filed exceptions to the Recommended Ruling and Decision pursuant to Rule §210.3. Following the filing of exceptions, four employee organizations have filed separate motions with the Board requesting leave to appear as amici curiae regarding various issues raised in the pending exceptions. Neither the City nor the PBA have opposed the motions.

DISCUSSION

Although PERB's Rules and Regulations do not set forth an explicit procedure regarding applications by parties who wish to seek leave to submit an amicus curiae brief, the Board has historically granted motions by parties seeking such relief and in some cases has invited amicus briefs relating to particular pending legal issues.¹ Nevertheless, the lack of a codified system regarding amicus status may have deterred organizations in the past, without a specific invitation from the Board, from making appropriate applications for leave with the Board.

The participation by amici curiae can have the positive impact of enhancing the deliberations by highlighting particular legal points and explaining the potential impact of the Board's ultimate determination.² In particular, such participation can be a constructive tool for insuring an examination of the Statewide implications regarding the resolution of a particular issue under the Taylor Law. At the same time, the submission of an amicus brief that merely regurgitates the arguments and points of law by a party before the Board will not generally enhance deliberations. Instead, such briefs can result in unnecessary delays in the issuance of a final Board decision and may constitute an unneeded administrative burden.

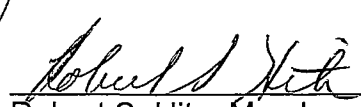

Based on the foregoing, the separate motions by the Lieutenants Benevolent Association, the New York State Union of Police Associations, the Captains Endowment Association, Inc. and the Suffolk County Police Conference for leave to file amicus briefs are hereby granted on the condition that such briefs identify applicable law or arguments that might otherwise escape the Board's consideration and state how those arguments are relevant to the Board's disposition of the exceptions.

IT IS, THEREFORE, ORDERED that an original and four copies of the amici briefs may be filed with the Board within five working days following receipt of this decision with proof service on the City and the PBA. The City and the PBA shall have seven working days upon receipt of the amici briefs to file supplemental briefs with the Board limited exclusively to responding to arguments raised in the amici briefs.
