Company Exit Explanation: After nearly a year-long negotiation, Asics has decided to end its business relationship with the supplier due to cost performance issues. The termination agreement was concluded amicably. The last shipment is in July 2011.

The major noncompliances revealed during IEM (excessive overtime, no paid leave, no overtime payment for training workers, lack of 7th day rest, wage deduction for being late or leaving early) were followed up on by Asics through a factory visit on August 2010 as reported below. Supplier has been cooperative and has been updating Asics on a monthly basis about the progress. Asics has advised and assisted the supplier, particularly on challenging areas like hours of work.

Now that Asics is pulling out of the factory, it is likely to have less influence over the corrective efforts, but will try to pursue them to the best of its ability and will be updating the FLA through the first half of 2011. Currently, there are no other FLA affiliates sourcing from the factory to take over the remedial plans.

The right to freedom of association begins at the time that a worker seeks employment, and continues through the course of employment, including eventual termination of employment, and is applicable as well to unemployed and retired workers. (S)

Noncompliance

Explanation: FLA Comment: The Chinese constitution guarantees Freedom of Association (FOA); however, the Trade Union Act prevents the establishment of trade unions independent of the sole official trade union - the All China Federation of Trade Unions (ACFTU). According to the ILO, many provisions of the Trade Union Act are contrary to the fundamental principles of FOA, including the non-recognition of the right to strike. As a consequence, all factories in China fall short of the ILO standards on the right to organize and bargain collectively. However, the government has introduced new regulations that could improve the functioning of the labor relations mechanisms. The Amended Trade Union Act of Oct. 2001 stipulates that union committees have to be democratically elected at members’ assemblies and trade unions must be accountable to their members. The trade union has the responsibility to consult with management on key issues of importance to their members and to sign collective agreements. Trade unions also have an enhanced role in dispute resolution. In Dec. 2003, the Collective Contracts Decree introduced the obligation for representative trade unions and employers to negotiate collective agreements, in contrast to the previous system of non-negotiated administrative agreements.
